- Found in Chapter 552 of the Government Code
- 34,327 Open Records Letter Rulings issued in fiscal year 2021
- 688 Open Records Decisions issued since 1973
- Chapters 63 and 70 of title 1 of the Texas Administrative Code have rules related to the administration of the Act

Senate Bill 1225 (Slide 1 of 2)

- Section 552.233
- Modifies “catastrophe” to mean an event or occurrence that directly interferes with a governmental body’s ability to comply with Chapter 552.
- Catastrophe does not include when the governmental body (GB) is required to work remotely and has access to electronic information.
- A GB may not initiate another suspension period for the same catastrophe, except for a one-time single extension.
- The combined time for the initial and extended suspension may not exceed more than 14 calendar days.

Senate Bill 1225 (Slide 2 of 2)

- Once the suspension period is up, the GB shall immediately resume compliance with Chapter 552.
- While working remote, the GB shall make a good faith effort to continue responding to applications for public information.
- Failure to put forth a good faith effort may constitute a refusal to request an attorney general's opinion or a refusal to supply public information.
- Effective on September 1, 2021.
